STATE NEWS.

[illegible]

Samuel [illegible], an employe at the Water Power Foundry, Biddeford, carried a ladle of molten iron to pour at his moulds Wednesday, and stooped over and picked up a skimmer to remove the dross from the surface of the ladle. By some means a few drops of water had fallen on the skimmer, and as it touched the liquid iron there occurred a report as loud as a pistol shot, and particles of the iron were scattered about, some of them striking [illegible] about the face and shoulders. He uttered a shriek and threw himself upon the ground, rolling over in the [illegible] to extinguish the flames. There was a severe burn over one of his eyes, and others on his shoulders and side. He suffered intense pain Wednesday night, but was quite comfortable Thursday.

Bowdoin College Notes

[Regular Correspondence of Whig and Courier.]

Arrangements for the coming Y. M. C. A. Convention are nearly completed. All the meetings will be held in Memorial Hall, the first one being on Thursday afternoon at [illegible]. The singing will be one of the many attractive features of the convention, besides Mr. and Mrs. [illegible] of Brooklyn, the College Glee [illegible]

Ayer's Pills, being convenient, efficacious, and safe, are the best cathartic, whether on land or sea, in city or country. For constipation, sick headache, indigestion, and liver troubles, they never fail. Try a box of them; they are sugar-coated.

Agricultural.

Hon. Z. A. Gilbert, Secretary of the State Board of Agriculture, has made a beginning of the winter's work of holding Farmers' Institutes in the several counties in the State, by making appointments for the month of November. [illegible]

Although the Institute work [illegible] than the [illegible] referred to above, there are many [illegible] about it. Wherever they have been held the records prove that in every instance the secretary and his associates have been most kindly and hospitably entertained, and upon leaving they were earnestly invited to come again.

The Board from the beginning has been wonderfully fortunate in the selection of its secretaries, and to them much of the credit is due for the grand work it has accomplished, for they have had all of the most difficult and perplexing part of the duties to perform. In fact the members of the Board are not allowed to hold over a two days session per year at the State's expense. If the same spirit of economy was displayed in all the departments of the State government the people surely would have no reason of complaint.

There is no industry in this or any other country so important to the whole people as that of agriculture, and no class of people have ever had so little done for them. [illegible] bounties were being showered on other interests by the government the farmer's interests have been overlooked. Every proposal to benefit the farmer and the agricultural interest should [illegible]

[illegible] In this way he will get more [illegible] and very much better [illegible] allowed to run with the [illegible] all day.

This is the time when they have good appetites and good digestive powers, and a bushel of grain will make nearly as much [illegible] as it would in ordinary December weather. This is even more true of swine than of the cattle [illegible]. The cattle are usually given a warm stable as the weather grows colder and the sheep are protected by a thicker fleece, but the temperature of the [illegible] is usually very much the same as that out of doors and the food which would fatten now would not do more than keep up the animal heat when the temperature is down to zero.

Do not neglect the poultry yard in the pressure of other duties. It is time the cockerels and turkeys were having all the grain they can eat, that they may be ready [illegible] for Thanksgiving dinner. Nor is there any danger in allowing the pullets all they want now as they need to grow in order to make them lay early this winter. The pullets and cockerels will both do better if [illegible]

BLAINE IN THE CAMPAIGN.

He Addresses a Large Meeting in Chicago.

The Shortcomings of the Administration Plainly Shown up.

The Abandonment of Cleveland's Civil Service Reform Pledges.

CHICAGO, Oct 20. One of the most notable Republican demonstrations in the campaign occurred in Chicago to-night. Mr Blaine was the central figure.

Mr Blaine's Speech

Mr Blaine, in his speech, said: Twenty-four years of Republican rule in the United States form an epoch second only in importance to the great years comprehended between the Declaration of Independence and the organization of the Federal Government. History recognizes that by assigning to the first President and the chief actor in the latter period the rank of second only in American statesmanship to Washington himself. The twenty four years reach from 1861 to 1885, and were distinguished by

of industry and by progress in every field of human effort, more extraordinary than ever realized within a like period in any age in any other country. At the conclusion of the twenty four years the Executive power of the Nation was transferred to the Democratic party, and the political campaign in which the American people now engage is to determine whether the Democratic rule shall continue, or whether the Republican party, on its record of achievements, shall be entrusted with a new lease of power. The Republicans contend that the general welfare of the whole country has not been promoted by the Democratic Administration and that Democratic promises of reform are equally disregarded and trampled upon. They contend that the Administration has been

that it has not maintained the National honor and threatens the impairment of the industrial system whereby, under the protective tariff, the country has advanced so rapidly in power and prosperity. The Republicans arraign President Cleveland for falling short of the promises wherewith his administration was inaugurated and for disappointing the just expectations which his words inspired. First they arraign him for his failure to improve the civil service as he promised in every form of words in which official pledges could be expressed. Instead of reform there has been constant deterioration. Instead of curing the evil the system of partisan removals the President has developed it to such an extent that more officials have been removed from office during the present Administration and

than by any three of his predecessors in office, even though the three may be selected who were eight years each in the Presidential chair. The spoils system [illegible] convicted and pardoned criminals, have been placed in office under the present administration and that the civil service has been thrown open in a degree heretofore unknown.

Second—The Republicans arraign the President for having surrendered the rights of the country in the fisheries of the North American coast in a manner derogatory to the dignity of the Nation and in utter disregard of the rights of [illegible]

The American People

[illegible]

Third—The Republicans arraign [illegible]

The Record of their Party

had eight years of Administration, distinguished by [illegible]

Fourth—the Republicans arraign the Administration for [illegible] Dakota. Dakota produces and sends to market a larger wheat crop than any one of the thirty eight States in the Union. She has within her borders a larger mileage of railroad than either of the seventeen Southern States except Missouri and Texas and her population is larger than any one of [illegible] as shown by the late general census.

Fifth—the Republicans arraign President Cleveland's administration for breaking down the sound policy of paying off the National debt as rapidly as the surplus in the treasury will allow.

Lastly, the Republicans arraign the President for his declared attempt to destroy the protective system of this country.

CONGRESSIONAL NOMINATIONS.

NEW YORK, Oct 20. The Third District Republican Congressional Convention nominated William C Wallace. The nominee is a young lawyer and partner of Stewart L Woodford.

The following Congressional nominations were made to-night: [illegible]

Judge Thurman in Indiana

BRAZIL, Ind., Oct. 20. Judge Thurman spoke to a great Democratic meeting to-day.

AN UNHAPPY BOARDING HOUSE.

The Proprietor Stabbed and the Cook Smothered.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20. The boarders at Claude Bartholdi's hotel, 104 West Thirty-third street, were alarmed last night by a crazy French waiter, who stabbed the proprietor and frightened the female boarders into fainting fits. At the same place, this morning, when the house [illegible]

AT HARRISON'S HOME.

A Visit from More Commercial Travellers.

To Whom he Talks Home Sense.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 20. General Harrison addressed a large body of drummers to-day. In the course of his speech he said: I do not need to repeat that I very highly value the support and confidence of the commercial travellers of the United States. I value it because I believe they give their adherence to the party whose candidate I am upon intelligent investigation and upon an earnest conviction of what is good for the country of which they are citizens. Who should be able, better than you, to know the commercial and business interests of our country? I believe I may say for you that as the result of your personal knowledge of our business needs you have concluded that the policy for Americans is the policy of the protective tariff. Who should know, better than you, that now levied, which enable our American manufacturers to maintain a competition with the manufacturers of other countries and at the same time to pay a scale of living wages to the men and women who work for them, is once broken down, that American competition with foreign production becomes impossible except by a reduction of the scale of American wages to the level of wages paid abroad? Certainly you do not need to be told that the shop or mill that has the smallest pay roll in proportion to its production will take the market. Certainly you do not need to be told that the wages now enjoyed by American workmen are greatly larger and the comforts they enjoy greatly more than those enjoyed by the working people of any other land. Since I was old enough to have opinions or to utter them, I have held to the doctrine that was that which should maintain not only a living rate of wages, but one with a margin for the savings and comfort for our workmen. I believe that policy essential to the prosperity and possibly to the perpetuity of our government. Two propositions that now stare our working people and the whole country in the face are these: Competition with foreign countries, without adequate discrimination and favoring duties means lower wages to our working people. A 'revenue only' tariff, or progressive free trade, means larger importation of foreign goods and that means less work in America. Let our Democratic friends fairly meet these two indisputable conclusions.

A TERRIBLE LANDSLIDE

Destroys a Railroad Train.

Ninety Corpses Already Taken from the Wreck.

ROME, Italy, Oct. 21. A despatch from Potenza says ten cars of a train crowded with excursionists, returning from Naples, were crushed in a remote portion of that district, by a landslide consisting of about 30 metres of rock. The telegraph line being broken help was delayed. The scene that followed was terrible. Seventy injured passengers and ninety corpses have been taken from the wreck and still two cars are beneath the rock and it is certain the death list will be increased. The work of excavation continues.

FOUR MYSTERIOUS MURDERS

Of Negroes in Tuscaloosa, Ala.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Oct. 21. The people of Tuscaloosa are excited by the mysterious murders of four negroes within ten days. The first victim was John Hill, a suspected negro [illegible], supposed to have been marked for his money. His dead body was found on the street, [illegible] The body of an unknown negro was found in the woods a few miles from town, and Friday the body of a [illegible] negro was found in the river. [illegible]

BASE BALL.

The World's Championship Contest.

Record of Saturday's Game

NEW YORK, Oct 20. The Giants won their fourth game in the series for the championship at the Polo Grounds to-day, before 10,000 people. It was a great game and looked like a victory for the St. Louis up to the eighth inning, when the Giants rallied at the bat and, scoring two runs, won the game. It was too dark to play longer and the game was called. Robinson and Lyons of the St Louis collided and both were badly hurt.

Score: St Louis, 4; New Yorks, 6. [illegible] Time—1 hour 50 minutes.

Other Games

At Philadelphia: Philadelphia, 13, Athletics, 0.

At Brooklyn: Brooklyns, 3, Washingtons, 3.

At Cincinnati: Cincinnatis, 7, Pittsburgs, 0.

At Baltimore: Baltimores, 16, Indianapolis, 4.

THE OHIO CAMPAIGN.

Senator Sherman Makes his Opening Speech.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Oct. 20. Senator John Sherman made the first speech of the campaign at Music Hall, to-night, to 3,000 people, under the auspices of the Western Reserve Protective Tariff League. He devoted the evening to the tariff and discussed the Mills bill quite thoroughly.

MISS PHELPS MARRIED

Author of "Gates Ajar" Wedded to a New York Editor

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Oct. 20. The marriage of Miss Elizabeth Stuart Phelps, the well known authoress of "Gates Ajar," "Jack," "Old Maids' Paradise" and other works, to Rev. Herbert D. Ward, of the New York Independent, a summer resident of Gloucester, a well known and enthusiastic yachtsman, was celebrated very quietly this afternoon at Miss Phelps' seashore cottage at East Gloucester, by Professor Phelps, of Andover, her brother. The knowledge that this event was to take place had been carefully withheld from the Gloucester people at least, and will create a surprise in Gloucester. Miss Phelps has been for many seasons a summer resident at East Gloucester, and one of her recent publications, "Jack," a story of a Gloucester sailor, aroused a storm of adverse comment from the people and pulpit here. Mr. Ward is a comparatively young man, not over thirty-five. Miss Phelps is somewhat older.

A BROKEN HEART

Causes the Death of a New York Chinaman.

NEW YORK, Oct 21. Lyn Doo, one of the old men of Chinatown, died to-day. The new anti-Chinese bill and the hardships it had caused his countrymen are said to have broken his heart. [illegible]

SUDDEN DEATH

Of Col. R. M. Pulsifer, of the Boston Herald.

BOSTON, Oct. 21. Col. R. M. Pulsifer, for many years one of the proprietors of the Boston Herald, died at his country house at Arlington, yesterday morning. [illegible] In the opinion of the medical examiner and the family physician, who made a careful examination of the remains there was not the slightest evidence to lead to any conclusion other than that death resulted from natural causes. The funeral, which will take place Monday afternoon, will be strictly private.

The plans for the new hotel to be erected at West Cove by a syndicate, are being drawn by Mr W. E. Mansur of this city.

The Supreme Judicial Court was occupied on Saturday with the disposal of divorce cases, but their decisions were not made public.

President Hyde, of Bowdoin, has written a set of articles upon "The Country College" for the Atlantic Monthly which will soon be published.

The Baptists at the Cove [illegible] are thinking of building a new church this fall, which shall cost $1,000 at least, and for which the convention will donate $1,100.

The water in Moosehead Lake is unusually high. It is said to be within three feet of the point at which it was when the gates were opened at the close of towing logs last spring.

Mrs. Flora Haines, of this city, who is engaged in gathering statistics among the women for the labor bureau, has been in Eastport recently where she visited the sardine factories being well satisfied with what she observed.

The Ellsworth American thinks there is a good samaritan in Ellsworth in the person of Mrs. George P. Dutton, who invites to her house weekly a large class of young ladies, to whom she gratuitously gives lessons in [illegible].

Business in the building line is so brisk at Greenville that there are not workmen enough to supply the demand and many of the men are doing overwork, and the sound of the saw and the hammer can be heard far into the night.

Dr I. S. Chilcott has contracted with Messrs. W. Cutter & Son to build him a new house on the corner of Union street and West Broadway. The cellar will be completed soon and the house will be built during the coming winter.

Mr W. L. Jennings, formerly of this city, and Mr W. J. Kingsley won the championship of doubles in tennis at the tournament at Harvard on Friday. Mr Jennings is a member of the senior class and is a very fine tennis player.

The schooner J. Ponder, Jr. has been purchased by Mr [illegible] and others of this city, of Capt. William T. Welch, of Belfast for $3,000. She will be employed as a coaster and will make a good vessel for the purpose.

The Levy Operatic and Concert Company which will appear in this city next Friday and Saturday is now at Boston, and was booked for a concert at [illegible] Hall last evening. The concert in this city is awaited with much interest.

[illegible] at City Hall will be [illegible] for the Cecilia Club course of entertainments, and the sale of course tickets will commence this morning at the [illegible]. A large sale is anticipated as the course promises to be an attractive one.

[illegible] College, and the debate will take place in Lewiston on either the 14th or 15th of next month. The judges will be chosen very soon.

The schooner King Philip which has been in this port for a few days completed the discharging of her cargo of coal for the Maine Central last week and will sail in ballast for Baltimore, as she was unable to get a charter to take away from here.

The session of the Inter-seminary Alliance will be held at Boston the last of this week and all of the seminaries throughout the United States will be represented. Many of the students of the Theological Seminary in this city will leave Wednesday to attend the meeting.

The great amount of rain which has fallen has done no damage to those who have begun lumber operations on high land, but on the low lands the swamps are filled and the brooks swollen, which makes it difficult to carry on work. If cold weather prevails the water will quickly subside.

J. B. Mayo & Son's woolen mills, at Foxcroft, are working to their utmost capacity, turning out about [illegible] yards of cloth a month. [illegible] They employ a force of about [illegible] hands.

A despatch from Portland brings the sad intelligence of the death, Saturday, of the little daughter, [illegible] at the age of five years and five days. The bereaved parents will have the deep sympathy of their many friends in this city.

Mr. Samuel Eliot, son of President Eliot of Harvard, who preached at the Unitarian church, in this city, a few weeks ago, supplied the pulpit of the church at West Gouldsboro while at Northeast Harbor this summer. Since his return to Cambridge he has raised quite a sum of money and presented it to the church.

At the Catholic Fair in [illegible] Hall Saturday evening there was a very large crowd and the time was spent in the various drawings. The fair has been a great success throughout and a large amount will be realized. Officer Dougherty was the lucky one to get the gold headed cane for the voting for the most popular policeman.

Saturday was another of the wet and disagreeable kind of days that have been the rule this fall, and enough rain fell to make an umbrella a necessary companion. The streets were, of course, in a very muddy state. [illegible]

A serious accident happened in Greenville on Friday. A man, whose name we did not learn, but who is said to belong to Milo, was at work upon the house of Mr. Charles Jackson when, by some mishap, he fell from the roof to the ground, breaking his arm and causing severe bruises upon his face and other parts of his body. He was brought down to Milo on Saturday.

The potato crop in Aroostook County is estimated at [illegible] this year, and valued at a million dollars. Apples in the county have not been injured by the frost. Owing to the good quality of potatoes the starch manufactured in the county will be of a superior quality. Three-quarters of all the potato starch produced in the United States is made in Aroostook.

Mr [illegible], Colby '89, will represent the Colby Chapter of [illegible] at the annual convention of the fraternity to be held with Adelbert College chapter at Cleveland, Ohio, on the 24th and 25th of this month. Mr [illegible], Colby '89, left Saturday night for Cincinnati, Ohio as a delegate from the Colby chapter of Delta Kappa Epsilon to the convention of the fraternity to be held this week.

President [illegible], of the Cecilia Club, has just secured the talent for the second concert of the club to be given in February. The [illegible] Concert Company will give a very fine concert, and the occasion will be one of much interest to musical people. The company is composed of Miss Gertrude Swayne, soprano, Miss Mary H. Howe, contralto, [illegible], Mr Richard Heard, pianist.

The Masonic Lodge of Bar Harbor has received a present that will be much appreciated by them. It is a lot of land upon which to build a Masonic hall which was presented by Miss Mary Shannon, who owns [illegible] one of the handsome villas at Bar Harbor. The lodge is allowed two years in which to build the hall and the other conditions are such as are for the benefit of the lodge. It is expected that they will build very soon.

The Poland Springs House closed for the season on Saturday. The hotel has had the most successful season since it was built and has been full of guests throughout the summer. Nearly all the rooms have been engaged for next season and the popularity of the place is evidently upon a firm basis. This hotel and the Mansion House are the only summer hotels that did any business worth mentioning this year. Many Bangor people were guests at both during the season.

Rev George Brooks, of London, England, a well known Baptist preacher, is in the city. He is travelling through the country obtaining material concerning the liquor traffic, and particularly in regard to the workings of the prohibitory and local option laws, for a series of articles which he will write for the Universal Review, a prominent London monthly magazine, on his return. He is spending considerable time in Maine studying the effect of the prohibitory law and will not return for a number of weeks.

Bears are devouring many sheep near [illegible], at a point about eight miles from this city, and we are informed by gentlemen who were at that place yesterday that no less than eleven have been killed in the last week. Eight belonged to Mr Lawrence [illegible], three to Mr David Watson and one to Mr Frank F. McGuire. In a certain place there is a large collection of bones, where the bears have carried them before devouring the carcasses, [illegible] done by a butcher. One of our sportsmen will go to that locality to-day to try his luck at bear hunting.

SPECIAL TOWN MEETING. Our Orono correspondent writes: A warrant calling a special meeting of the town on Saturday, [illegible] is already posted in the proper place. The articles to be acted upon are: First—to choose a moderator to preside at said meeting. Second—to see if the town will vote to accept the street or way laid out by the selectmen Nov 18th, 1887, across the land of [illegible] Perkins and Joseph Porter. Third—to see if the town will vote to authorize and instruct the selectmen to build said street or way from funds raised at the annual town meeting to build the street or way accepted March 19th, 1888 and [illegible] by the County Commissioners the 18th.

ORONO [illegible] ANNUAL BALL. Our Orono correspondent writes: The fourteenth annual ball of the [illegible] Company, of Orono, occurred at the town hall last Friday evening, a large and pleasant party being in attendance. The music which was furnished by Andrews' Orchestra was of its usual excellence, and the eighteen dances [illegible] were enjoyed by all who attended. The floor was under the direction of Mr. James H. Ambrose who was assisted by a corps of eleven aids. The programmes were very nobby and greatly admired. The department for checking clothing was made perfect under the supervision of Messrs. James McMillan and Mitchell. Over sixty couples took part in the dancing, all voting it a very pleasant time. At intermission a beautiful supper consisting of oyster stews, cake and coffee was served in the room below.

HARVEST CONCERT. There was a large number present at the Harvest concert of the Third Parish Sunday School last evening and a very enjoyable concert was given. [illegible]

The Sunday Globe says: "M. Coquelin, who is a warm friend of Professor Ventura's, has presented him with a valuable Moscow ring. Mr Ventura will read on Thursday next in the parlors of the Young Men's Christian Association, at 3 P. M., from the Coquelin repertoire 'Gringoire,' with alterations and additions made by him." Prof. Ventura will probably continue his classes in French and Italian in this city the coming winter.

Loud calls, as of a man in trouble, on one of the wharves near the Kenduskeag bridge on the west side of the stream Saturday evening, attracted quite a large number of persons on both sides of the stream, who supposed that a man had fallen into the water, and various rumors were in circulation, one saying that a man was drowned, another that a man had been rescued from drowning, and still another that there had been a big fight. The facts were that a drunken man had fallen down on the wharf and called for help, saying that he had been knocked down. The police took him in charge and locked him up.

Shall the City Sell the Bangor and Piscataquis Railroad?

Editor of the Whig and Courier:

The [illegible] manifested by many of our citizens regarding the progress of events in railroad matters is surprising to any one having any knowledge of railroad affairs.

The really perilous condition of our city is not comprehended. The report of the committee of the City Council [illegible] to buy the Bangor and Piscataquis Railroad seems to have led some to believe that there is a great desire on the part of somebody to have the Bangor and Piscataquis, that we can safely decline the pending offer confident that it will be followed by a higher.

To show how doubtful such a possibility is a great many reasons might be given, but I only ask space enough to call public attention to the probability of the almost worthless condition into which it is possible that the Bangor and Piscataquis may be put. I mean by the utter loss of nearly all its business except a part of its local traffic. The Dexter and Dover Railroad is an [illegible] was projected and [illegible] before the present offer of Mr Jones was thought of. That this bluff and [illegible], as it has been termed by people who had not interest enough to go to Dover to learn the fact, although they were appointed a committee to investigate the whole subject and advise their fellow citizens what to do in the matter involving one and a quarter million of dollars, is now a reality, as they have advertised for proposals to build the road and it is a decided condition that the road be completed by July 1st, 1889.

Every citizen knows that after the construction of this line all the business from Dexter, [illegible] and all points west of us will pay no more mileage to the Bangor and Piscataquis below Dover and that the business of Dover, [illegible] will be [illegible] lost to us, and the Bangor and Piscataquis will be made worth [illegible] less by the completion of this new line, besides the great loss to the [illegible] Bangor caused by the [illegible] avenue of traffic.

It is now too late to prevent disaster [illegible]

With the Piscataquis Valley business tapped at Dover, and the lake business diverted to [illegible], does any one imagine that the Bangor and Piscataquis railroad could be sold for more than one half of what they are now offered? I do not. Yet an expenditure of $350,000 for the Dexter and Dover and an equal amount for the construction of the [illegible] line will accomplish the ruin of our property.

With half of this already certain I think our citizens should consider the possible consequences more seriously than have their committee before the offer of Frank Jones be declined.

F. C. PUTNAM.

AMUSEMENTS.

The Levy Operatic Concert Company.

Next Friday and Saturday evenings and Saturday afternoon the Levy Operatic and Concert Company will appear at the Opera House, and the [illegible] with his excellent company will undoubtedly draw very large audiences. The St. Louis Post Dispatch says:

The first of the Levy concerts was given at the Grand last night to a very enthusiastic audience. It has been a long time since Mr Levy has played in St. Louis and his return was welcomed with every display of appreciation. [illegible] It is impossible to describe the peculiar softness and mellowness of his tones and the wonderfulness of his execution, but his playing seems different from that of any other.

The Listemann Concert.

Bernhard Listemann with his excellent company of solo artists will open the attractive course of entertainments announced by the Cecilia Club. This is not a company gotten up for an occasion, but they play constantly together, and their ensemble is as the playing of one man. No other company possesses so many truly eminent soloists. Each stands unquestionably at the head of his chosen instrument. They have a rich repertoire of the most pleasing compositions of both classical and modern composers, carefully arranged by Mr. Listemann, with a special view of bringing out the principal orchestral effects.

PENOBSCOT COUNTY TEACHERS

The Closing Session Saturday Forenoon

The closing session of the teachers meeting at the High School building attracted a large number Saturday forenoon. The following resolution was submitted by the Committee on Resolutions through the chairman Mr Cornforth of Dexter:

CHAPTER XV.

DON FRANCESCO.

[illegible] Isabella.

[illegible]

[illegible] upon the [illegible] which they were marching, while Corcelli led the prisoners to a calessine, which was waiting to receive the [illegible]. The vehicle took the road to Calabria and the banditti formed themselves into a mounted escort by the side of it.

Pietro still followed, for it was, above all, necessary that he should know to what place Corcelli conducted his victims.

[illegible] he ran, with the courage of despair, until he at last fell down, worn out with fatigue and weeping with rage, in the middle of the road.

The poor fellow managed to drag himself back to the faubourg of Loretto, where he arrived at break of day.

He entered the tavern of Il Cappuccino, and found Conrad still asleep there.

Pietro called up poor Cappucino.

"You have had carousing here to-night?" said he to the tavern keeper.

"Ah! signore mio carissimo! don't speak of it," replied Il Cappuccino; "but," added he, in a plaintive voice, "do you know Masaniello?"

"Yes."

"Well, then, that scoundrel here and his fellows, who have consumed more olla podrida, hams and wine than would keep all the king's cavalry for a week, have told me that Masaniello will pay for what they have had. Do you believe it?"

"How can I know? But listen," added Pietro, "if you will obey me, I promise you that you shall be paid."

"What must I do, then, Santa Maria del Carmine?"

"One of those fellows is still here?"

"Yes, signore mio, a horrid German, who eats like a boa constrictor, and drinks more than a fish."

"Keep him here till I return."

"Will it be soon? for if I have to keep him long ——"

"Fear nothing. Let him have what he likes and you shall be paid to the last penny."

And Pietro cast a glance [illegible] at Conrad, in order to see with what sort of a rascal he had to deal, and then took his departure for the Vicaria.

Angelo had just awoke when Dom Francesco knocked at the gate of the Vicaria. He was immediately received by Masaniello, who led him into the council chamber.

"You did not sleep last night, my son," said the monk to Masaniello, whose cheeks were pale and whose eyes were red with weeping.

"No," replied the young man, "the load I now bear crushes me; yesterday I felt strong and full of resolution, but to-day I feel my weakness, and am almost sinking beneath despair."

"Courage, Masaniello, courage! Woe betide him who hesitates, after having let loose the gushing waters of promise!"

"Yes, woe betide me! for my ambition will lose me!"

"Can you regret your victory?" asked Dom Francesco, scrutinizing Masaniello's countenance.

"The future terrifies me."

"You are embarked in a good cause, and have accomplished a glorious revolution. Continue the work you have so well begun, remain faithful to your principles, accomplish without hesitation, the mission [illegible] the people of [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] "In the name of the Holy Trinity, the Father, the Son and the Holy Ghost, and [illegible]

[illegible]

"Everything appears impossible to those who have no longer any faith in their cause," sorrowfully remarked the monk.

"Our fathers were formerly happy, when they possessed the charter granted them by Charles the Fifth," continued Masaniello. "They then loved Spain, and armed themselves in her defence; let us, therefore, insist on the restoration of the rights which this act gave us, and of which we have been unjustly deprived."

"In other terms, you are willing to treat with the viceroy!"

"And to restore him that power, the weight of which is crushing me," added the fisherman.

Here the monk approached Masaniello, took the young man's hand affectionately in his, and, looking him steadfastly in the face, said:

[illegible]

[illegible]

"What has happened?" cried the latter.

"Brother, prepare your arms," replied Pietro; "we have all received a terrible blow."

[illegible]

"You are going to quit Naples?" asked Don Francesco.

"Do you know which road Corcelli has taken?" asked the fisherman of Naples.

"The road to Capua."

"Yes, father, yes, I am going to quit Naples," added Masaniello, turning toward the Benedictine, "I am going to attack this vulture's nest, in which Jeanne and Isabella are held captive."

"But all will be lost if you abandon us. The Duke of Arcos may attack us, and who will there then be to lead the people on?"

"What do I now care about the revolution of Naples, or the efforts of the viceroy! Dom Francesco, your heart is dead to every human passion, cold calculation only guides your steps. But by the holy Madonna! I am a man, I am young and may I never see the light again if, ere the day has sped, Corcelli's prisoners are not free."

"What streams of blood will have flowed, what numbers of victims will have perished, oh, heaven!" murmured the Benedictine, "by the time Masaniello returns to this city, which Providence seems to have abandoned!"

"Sangue di Cristo!" exclaimed the fisherman, half suffocated with rage, "you talk like a madman, father. For Jeanne, whom this ruffian Corcelli holds in his claws, is my sister."

"Is it solely on that account that you are about to take this journey into the Apennines?" asked Dom Francesco, coldly.

"I go to rescue both her and Isabella," replied Masaniello, "that angel of beauty and love, who, but yesterday, whispered in my ear, at the convent of Santa Chiara, such sweet vows and such ineffable promises, that father, one must be mad and cowardly indeed not to try to redeem, at the cost of all his blood, the honor and liberty of these poor women who now hope but in me."

"Then you have seen the daughter of the Duke of Arcos again, Masaniello?"

"She had taken refuge with Jeanne in the convent of Santa Chiara, and I went there to see my sister."

"You ought to have told me this, my son, when I read you the draft of the constitution, we should have avoided a good deal of discussion," added Dom Francesco.

At this moment an arrow, shot from the place before the Vicaria, struck against the wall facing the window and fell at Masaniello's feet.

A letter was attached to it.

Masaniello snatched it up and read the following words, in a panting voice.

"Masaniello, when you read these lines Isabella and your sister will be my prisoners. If, three days hence, you have not placed beneath the large oak which stands in the middle of the plain of Portici, facing the tavern of Buona Fide, 30,000 ducats for Jeanne's ransom, and 60,000 ducats for that of the noble Isabella d'Arcos, two women will never again go on your bark to eat oranges at Procida. Recollect that it is dangerous to defy Corcelli."

"You see, father, how necessary it is to treat with the viceroy, and to obtain the money required for the ransom of his daughter and Jeanne. For if, after all, our expedition should not succeed! if in three days—but it is too horrible to think of. Dom Francesco! Therefore, take pity on us, father; we were once dear to you. Go to the Castel-Nuovo, and come to some understanding with the Spaniards, while I lead the expedition against these brigands. The viceroy will grant you, who are an ecclesiastic, and whose virtues are known to the whole town, what he would refuse a poor fisherman like Masaniello."

"My son," replied the monk, [illegible]

[illegible]

"What is it?"

[illegible]

[illegible] by Corcelli and his band.

A GRAND IDEA.

Prof. Geo. H. Kalteyer, the well-known chemist of Texas, investigated the baking powder question, and wrote: "I submitted Prof. Horsford's preparation to a chemical examination, and found it composed of pure and non-poisonous materials. The idea of Prof. Horsford was, indeed, a grand one, in supplanting the indigestible tartrates, which are the final result of all cream tartar baking powders, by the soluble phosphates, the very nutritive property of bread, and the bone-producing element of nature. It is certainly the best and most healthful bread-raising preparation ever offered to the public."

Dandruff eradicated, the scalp made clean, and gray hair restored to its original youthful beauty and vigor by the use of Hall's Vegetable Sicilian Hair Renewer.

oct23 d&w1w

The importance of purifying the blood cannot be overestimated, for without pure blood you cannot enjoy good health.

At this season nearly every one needs a good medicine to purify, vitalize and enrich the blood, and Hood's Sarsaparilla is worthy your confidence. It is peculiar in that it strengthens and builds up the system, creates an appetite, and tones the digestion, while it eradicates disease. Give it a trial.

Hood's Sarsaparilla is sold by all druggists. Prepared by C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.
